

AUG 30 1965

FOIAb3b

CPYRGHT

A controversial former agent of the Central Intelligence Agency, Edward G. Lansdale, arrived in Saigon, where he will serve as a special assistant to Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge. Lansdale, a former Air Force officer and an expert on psychological warfare, declined to say what his new job would entail. He is expected to concentrate on winning over the South Vietnamese rural population. He indicated he would spend most of his time in the field.